Story Wars Addiction

Chapter 1 by Brock Thompson

I'll admit I have a problem. I find myself writing and looking at stories on this site for hours. This is the only website I visit.

While I want to take my extreme desire for success in this site as a good thing, I can't help but think that I might be obsessed with Story Wars.

Chapter 2 by R

It's not an addiction. I can stop at any time. I do, occasionally. I just tend to almost immediately get back on.

I'd like to say it's because I love to be creative, and that's true. Mostly. That's the reason I looked to this site, but now-

I just want to see that people have voted on my chapters, had drafted for my stories - any of those things and there is a rush in my head and in my heart. It's one of those brain drugs, the things that make you happy. Endorphins, I guess.

At least it's not as bad as some of the other things you can find online. See more of Story Wars

Well, if you ignore the hours wasted when I should have been doing things like homework, but let's be honest: I can't say I care that much.

Chapter 3 by lightningstrikeshannah (I'm back!)

I can write meaningless stories for hours on end, and then post them and get zero points, but it doesn't matter when you are distracted by the stories visited by 100+ people, or chatting in the chatroom for hours on end.

Hoping that you won't get addicted but you do anyway.

You watch the timer tick down for hours, waiting until you can vote.

I am addicted to Story Wars.

Chapter 4 by thepinkdolphin

Yes. It might be an addiction, and I share it too, but, it is quite educational and it helps reading.

Chapter 5 by Weirdfriendlessgirl

I thought I could stop.....

Really I did.

In fact I quit for almost a week.

Then I got curious: Had anyone written drafts for my stories? Had people voted for my drafts? Did people miss me?

So I logged on. It's just the beginning. See more of Story Wars

And suddenly it's morning. Can't believe it.

Ok maybe I'm addicted.....

Chapter 6 by Mason Lee

It's not that bad.

It's just that...

The only thing I'm frustrated about is that my amazing stories aren't being viewed and written on.

The only thing I'm angry about is that my chapter didn't win.

The only thing I'm worried about is if the chapter I voted on wins.

Oh wait! I just realized something!

I have a serious problem.

Chapter 7 by -

Day and night. Awake or in a dream. I find myself thinking of StoryWars.

It is not just because of the Editor's List, waiting to see if my story was chosen.

It is not just because of my notifications box, checking to see if it is full.

It is not just because of the stories I must write, though that is important too.

It is because of the people and the friends I have made, that keeps drawing back here.

To see whether my Brother is on. To see whether my Friend is on. To see whether - you are on...

That is what it means to be addicted to StoryWars.

Chapter 8 by McKenna

Well, I guess it's not JUST me who is addicted to story wars. Everybody is. I mean it is a good thing that I have more competition.
